“Do We Worship the Same God?: Comparing the Bible And the Qur'an”

By George Dardess

George Dardess has taken a complex and sensitive subject and presented it in a highly readable and comprehensible text. The author has taken each contentious issue, given his assessment, backed his assertions with a side-by-side comparison of the Bible and the Quran, and then posed a list of questions to his Christian readers. The questions are meant to challenge, but more so, to draw the reader out of the traditional mode of thinking and appreciate the similarities in the sacred text.

The simplicity with which he unravels complex theological issues is remarkable. But more than that, his rationale is convincing. It is a reading that is intended to enhance interfaith understanding, to foster respect, and to heal the divide. And it does that remarkably well. It is a book that both Christians and Muslims will find illuminating.
